

I am totally opposed to allowing cell phones on flights. It is one of the last refuges where you can't be forced to overhear the private business of loud bores, and would add noise pollution to all the other discomforts of air travel. Considering that the vast majority of people feel this way, for the FCC and airlines to pursue it would be obnoxious and antisocial.